

Quality car batteries fitted for free in Sydney

Typically, car batteries usually last about 4 years under normal driving conditions, provided that the battery gets to go through its full charge cycles on a constituent basis. The problem is that most batteries are subjected to conditions that are much tougher than "normal conditions". Extreme temperatures, rough road vibrations, head units, and GPS receivers all take a huge toll on your car's battery.

Quality guaranteed car batteries

The team here at Roadside Help understands the importance of only using batteries that are specifically designed for the tough Australian environment.

Our long 3-year warranty on our Exide car batteries is there to give you peace of mind and to demonstrate our commitment to stand by the quality of this outstanding product.

Batteries with the power that you need

We don't stock low-quality, low cold cranking amp batteries that won't last very long or that provide unstable voltage outputs. We know that these effects could potentially damage the sensitive electrical components on your car. Our quality standards avoid the risks associated with such inferior products and our superior batteries cost only marginally more whilst providing a product that is safe and beneficial for your car.
