Online Technical Training & Engineering Education

At the Engineering Institute of Technology (EIT), we provide outstanding practical engineering and technology education; from Diplomas through to Masters Degrees. Our engineering lecturers and instructors have extensive knowledge and real engineering experience in the industry. Our learning is gained through synchronous, online (e-learning) technologies.

We are able to provide course participants with exceptional online learning using advanced learning techniques. Our accredited courses are available for those looking to further their engineering education and excel in their chosen field.

At EIT, we offer courses that are created for students working in the industry but need a practical, relevant education that is delivered through online learning.

We offer learning that is of the highest standard and courses that have been designed specifically for likeminded people who want to further their knowledge.

EIT and IDC Technologies are a sister companies. IDC is a well-known and reputable engineering training organization. IDC has been operating for over 20 years, from offices throughout the world, delivering practical short courses to well over 500,000 engineers and technicians.

Our courses include:

- School of Industrial Automation, Instrumentation & Process Control
- School of Civil Engineering
- School of Data Communications & Industrial IT

- School of Electrical Engineering
- School of Electronic Engineering
- School of Mechanical Engineering
- School of Management
