What are the benefits of hot water services in your home?

Hot water is never more appreciated than when the system is broken or malfunctioning. We recommend having your hot water system checked every time an inspection is carried out on other plumbing mechanisms. It is recommended to have your hot water system inspected and serviced at least once per year. This will help reduce the chance of failure or malfunction and help the system have a longer lifespan. During inspection, all, if any, present issues will be identified and attended to.

If damage or wear and tear is discovered during an inspection and service, we will advise you of the options that you have at your disposal. There are times in which just the parts can be replaced or repaired, and there are instances in which the hot water system will have to be completely replaced.

What are comprehensive services?

When we service a hot water system, we inspect and service everything from the floor up. Our comprehensive services include:

- Corrosion inspection: We drain the water to check the inside of the tank for corrosion.
- Leaks are spotted: We check for leaks and reseal any damaged seals.
- Gas connections are investigated: gas connections are reviewed to ensure they are not in need of replacement.
- A complete flush is performed: We conduct a complete flush to make sure that any deposits or debris that may be inside the tank and lines are removed.

What are the benefits of hot water in your home?

There are not too many people that would consider hot water to be a luxury, regardless of what climate they live in. Hot water is an integral part of a number of functions that are common in the home such as doing the laundry, washing the dishes and taking a shower. Hot water makes household cleaning a lot easier as well. To lose the use of hot water can literally place a home in crisis mode.

It is important to resist the urge to attempt to handle services and maintain your hot water system on your own.
