

MEKplastering

MEK Plastering is excited to announce that we are now offering Venetian Plastering. Venetian plaster is a lime based product that can be used on walls, floors and ceilings. It is applied with a trowel in thin multiple layers to both internal and external areas. After this it is burnished to create a smooth surface with the illusion of depth and texture. When applied correctly Venetian plaster becomes rock hard, durable and has a highly polished, marble like finish. It is especially useful in areas that would be too expensive to use real marble such as columns, corbels, fireplaces and curved walls. Venetian plaster can be tinted or coloured using natural or synthetic colours. This can be useful when trying to find a specific colour of marble or when wanting to use a colour that may not exist naturally.

Venetian Plaster has been used for centuries throughout Europe and the rest of the world. In fact, Venetian Plaster dates all the way back to ancient roman times and can be found on the walls in the villas of Pompeii and many other historic buildings around Europe. Today, Venetian plaster can be found in many high class and exclusive hotels, restaurants, monuments, churches and top end designer stores such as Louis Vuitton & Burberry. This high end finish has become extremely popular amongst the top architects and designers and has had huge write ups in many design magazines such as scoop, Australian design review, Interior design and many more.

Some of the many qualities of Venetian Plaster include:
