About us....

We are a small family run business, set up by my wife and myself out of our garage at home. Having recently emigrated from the UK, we left witnessing a huge rise in the electric bike market both there and in Europe. We then arrived here and found there wasn't a lot to choose from. So, we set out with the aim of making electric bikes for all, no matter your age or fitness, with good quality components at an affordable price. We started researching and as we quickly found out China make most of the world's bikes. We then spent the next six months contacting and meeting suppliers, trialling and testing their bikes. From here we were able to narrow down the bikes we felt would be best suited to all and began building a solid relationship with the chosen manufacturer. Our journey has been a great experience and continues to be so, with lots of highs and lows along the way, but we have now reached a position where we can supply a small range of bikes at an affordable price that will be sure to put a smile on your face every time you switch that ignition key on and begin to pedal away.
