

ABOUT US

The Pied Plumber was the brain child of Steven Piper who, starting from humble beginnings as a one man band in 1995, built the business into one of the leading professional plumbing services in Sydney.

At the beginning, Steven focused on providing his customers with a top quality plumbing service with an ideology to become the best family plumber in Sydney. In 2014, and due to his love of training and education, Steven now focuses his career on helping other businesses to become successful, teaching them the fundamental skills required to operate at a professional level.

Adam Silver has since has taken reigns over the business. A long time staff member knowing all day to day operations with over a decade of service. Adam continues with Steven's focus on family plumbing, finding nothing more enjoyable than returning time and time again to his existing customers who know him by name and always make him welcome.

The Pied Plumber focuses on customer service

Adam recognises that providing his customers with a quality service is vital to maintaining a successful family business. This is why he focuses on good customer service, prompt response times and maintains his standards with superior quality control.

As a professional family plumber, Adam makes sure that every plumbing job is performed to the highest level with no short cuts and only the very best parts and products used for the job. Keeping up to date with emerging plumbing technologies and incorporating these into the business, ensures that his customers continue to have the very best technology at their disposal.
