The Brainwave

Late in 2004, Glen Jensen had an idea—a moment of pure inspiration.

Glen is what you might call a visionary. Over 18 years in the network marketing industry—working his way up from customer service through international sales to the executive suite—Glen has always had a sense for what people want and how they want to get it. He turns new concepts and strategies over in his mind, finding better ways to do things. And as he lay awake in the wee hours of a chilly November morning back in 2004, he began thinking about...gel.

Athletes use gels to pound carbs right before competition or in the middle of a race. What if anyone could pound nutritional supplements in the same way—when it's most convenient for them? Could a highly accessible delivery system like the one athletes use be versatile enough to work with other consumable products?

The answer launched a powerful new delivery mechanism called Suspension Gel Technology.

- Fast Assimilation
- Portable convenient 20ml packets
- Low Glycemic index
- Low in Calories
- Low in Carbohydrates
- Low in Fat
- Kosher certified
- Halal certified
- No refrigeration required
- Tastes fantastic
- Looks cool

Agel
has applied revolutionary,
patent-pending technology to the delivery of nutritional supplements.
Gel-based nutritionals
are convenient and effective.

Agel has also made them taste great!

There are three important factors that make nutritional supplements effective:

- the proper timing of ingestion,
- the correct quantity of each nutritional component,
- and the bioavailability of the nutrients.

The convenience of the portable gel packs helps with proper timing for taking the supplements with meals, which enhances the bioavailability (absorption and utilization) of each nutrient. Agel's supplements are formulated to contain physiologically appropriate quantities of nutrients, vitamins and minerals.

And, using gel technology, the nutrients are highly bioavailable - they are readily absorbed into your body. Before gel supplements, individuals relied on less effective tablet, capsule, and liquid forms of nutritional supplements.
