Our philosophy

Capital Air is a proactive company that is constantly evolving in today's fast paced building and services market. Our company philosophy revolves around client satisfaction, building long-term and sustainable relationships.

Our staff

Owner/Manager Andrew Bishop has been in the air conditioning and refrigeration industry since 1996 and has extensive experience with both commercial and domestic installations, as well as service and maintenance of both air conditioning and refrigeration systems. Andrew and our efficient staff members are well equipped to offer quality service to our clients with a wealth of expertise, industry experience and knowledge.

Our quality assurance

Capital Air is a successful and professionally managed business, a market leader in its field of operation. The growth and success of Capital Air is the result of a culture committed to best practice and professional standards, including continuous improvement and industry related education. This level of commitment ensures that the services and products provided are of the highest quality.

We believe in the importance of providing adequate training and support to our staff, so that they may pass on the high standards expected by the management team.

Capital Air complies with all Australian standards and codes of practice with relevant industry reviews and audits.

Our environmental policy

Capital Air is a responsible and accountable business and ensures that all staff address and handle hazardous materials in a manner that is compliant with industry standards.
