Postcode finder

If you don't know the postcode (for example if you're looking for a business when you're going away from home) you can find it easily by entering the relevant suburb and state.

The screenshot shows the ClickFind website's 'Postcode finder' page. At the top, there is a navigation bar with icons for Home, Help, Call us, My account, and Sign out. Below this is the ClickFind logo and a menu with buttons for 'quick search', 'power search', 'browse', and 'add your business'. The user is signed in as 'Melanie Smith'. The main heading is 'Postcode finder' with a sub-heading 'Look up the postcode for an Australian town or suburb.' and a 'back to search page' link. The search form is titled 'Find an Australian postcode' and includes a text input for 'Enter suburb name', a dropdown menu for 'Select state' (currently set to 'ACT'), and a green 'find postcode >>' button.

Step 1 – enter suburb and state

The screenshot shows the 'Postcode search results' section. It displays the message: 'Yes! We found a matching postcode for Ferny Grove in Queensland: 4055'. Below this, there are two buttons: a green 'use this postcode >>' button with the instruction 'Click this button to use this postcode in your search', and a blue 'search again >>' button with the instruction 'Click this button to look for a different postcode'.

Step 2 – use the matching postcode in your search

Search results: business name

If you search for a business name, you'll see a list of businesses matching your search terms, rated by relevance. You can then look at individual business info, or re-order the results based on distance, suburb or business name. You also have the option of adding one or more businesses to your personal shortlist.
